On April 13, 2009, Sorenson Communications, Inc. (Sorenson) filed a petition for declaratory ruling or limited waiver regarding the Federal Communications Commission's (Commission's) rule that every default provider of Internet-Protocol (IP) Relay service and video relay service (VRS) provide its users a geographically appropriate North American Numbering Plan (NANP) telephone number.¹ Sorenson claims its numbering partner is unable to obtain telephone numbers in every rate center and therefore, Sorenson is unable to provide its users that live in those unserved rate centers a geographically appropriate number.² Sorenson further argues that it is not "economically or operationally feasible" for itself or any other IP Relay or VRS provider to obtain telephone numbers in every rate center.³

On June 15, 2009, the Consumer & Governmental Affairs Bureau extended from June 30, 2009 to November 12, 2009 the date for the end to the permissive calling period during which Internet-based Telecommunications Relay Service providers may continue to complete the non-emergency calls of unregistered users. ³ Id. at 1-2. Sorenson claims that adherence to the Commission's rule would result in "thousands of users" living in unserved rate centers being unable to register with a default provider before the June 30, 2009 [now November 12, 2009] deadline or at risk of having "prior registrations annulled" because they were not registered with geographically appropriate numbers. Id. at 2.
